

KHS- Parent

2. How does the remote day benefit your family?

150Responses

ID	Name	Language	Responses
1	anonymous	English (United States)	It hasn't, my kids think it's a day off and my husband and I both work long hours and cannot keep them on task. T
2	anonymous	English (United States)	No effect on our family
3	anonymous	English (United States)	Giving a flexible schedule to the HH while continuing to allow for education
4	anonymous	English (United States)	It doesn't
5	anonymous	English (United States)	None
6	anonymous	English (United States)	It doesn't
7	anonymous	English (United States)	More time to get homework done. More time with family. Better technology skills.
8	anonymous	English (United States)	It does not
9	anonymous	English (United States)	yes

ID	Name	Language	Responses
10	anonymous	English (United States)	My [REDACTED] get more rest and have less pressure to be quick about working. That is also a disadvantage. But there is less stress on remote days
11	anonymous	English (United States)	help with scheduling apts etc
12	anonymous	English (United States)	It's a good day to get caught up on undone assignments, and for me to see what my boys are working on and what needs done.
13	anonymous	English (United States)	Being home together. Learning how to learn online.
14	anonymous	English (United States)	It doesn't.
15	anonymous	English (United States)	One less day for student to be exposed to possible infection.
16	anonymous	English (United States)	Catch up work time if behind at all, can help when sick to stay caught up as well
17	anonymous	English (United States)	Greatly! It makes scheduling weekly tasks easier. I like it gives the students flexibility and the opportunity to prepare for college.
18	anonymous	English (United States)	Same as prestens
19	anonymous	English (United States)	It doesn't

ID	Name	Language	Responses
20	anonymous	English (United States)	Does not benefit my family, however I know how much teachers need this!!!!
21	anonymous	English (United States)	It allows flexibility for assignments and family activities. It also allows my student to learn how to communicate better with adults when they don't understand. It also allows them to learn how to manage their own time which will help them with future education and vocational endeavors.
22	anonymous	English (United States)	It allows flexibility for assignments and family activities. It also allows my student to learn how to communicate better with adults when they don't understand. It also allows them to learn how to manage their own time which will help them with future education and vocational endeavors. One of the greatest benefits for my students is that they have been able to work part time on Fridays. My student doesn't know what they want to do post-high school and he has found that he really enjoys his part time job which has motivated him to try harder in school. It has also taught him that he can do hard things even when he doesn't want to do it, which has definitely carried over to school classes. Please keep remote Fridays - very beneficial.
23	anonymous	English (United States)	Great for COVID and to get kids ready in case of extended closure.
24	anonymous	English (United States)	Great for COVID purposes.
25	anonymous	English (United States)	Flexibility for kids. Had a [REDACTED] out with an [REDACTED] and she used that day to get one on one time with teachers to get caught up.
26	anonymous	English (United States)	Our son is preparing for college and this has given him a new confidence to look at online schooling options for college as well as in-class. It was so new when all of this happened that it was scary and unsettling. It is now comfortable and just another option.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
27	anonymous	English (United States)	It does not benefit our family in any certain ways.
28	anonymous	English (United States)	None
29	anonymous	English (United States)	There hasn't been any benefit from the remote days. My kids are in tears because they don't understand something or a teacher won't email them back until the following Monday. We do not like the remote days.
30	anonymous	English (United States)	We spend more time together
31	anonymous	English (United States)	Requires parental involvement. I would be in favor of lengthening out the school day M-Th and having F off completely.
32	anonymous	English (United States)	Love having the day to discuss the work assignments, and ensure my son is on task! We have an additional day to spend together.
33	anonymous	English (United States)	I'm more in touch with my child's classes and education
34	anonymous	English (United States)	Allows our daughter another day to work Our child chose to only come back to the HS 2 days a week and do her remaining classes via IDLA. Without a remote day, these days she was in school would have changed (on the former A Day/B Day schedule) We love that she knows every week she goes to the HS Monday and Wednesday and is home Tuesday, Thursday, Friday. For a student who does not particularly being in the overcrowded school environment, this allows our high achieving student to thrive.
35	anonymous	English (United States)	We love it! It gives us a chance to work on our computer skills and how to take online classes. Most college students will take at least a couple of online classes at some point and this has been a great opportunity to

ID	Name	Language	Responses
			learn and practice some of those skills. It has also been less stressful for one of our kids who suffers from anxiety. She says she feels like there is not as much pressure to perform, like in the classroom, and that she can take her time a little better/put more thought into some assignments before they are turned in. She previously had several teachers who wanted things turned in at the end of class. Looking to next semester, our oldest is taking a couple classes at CSI and it works way better with scheduling there because all classes are MW or TTH at KHS. It opens a lot more opportunities for upperclassmen looking for advanced opportunities.
36	anonymous	English (United States)	More family time but really the kids are not learning that day.
37	anonymous	English (United States)	Makes the week not so stressful at school. And keeps us more on track for what day it is. My child is dual enrolled and it works so much better with his other school classes. Also he is able to work on projects from KHS.
38	anonymous	English (United States)	There are no benefits to remote online schooling
39	anonymous	English (United States)	It does not.
40	anonymous	English (United States)	Able to do more of her homework and dual credits
41	anonymous	English (United States)	If the teacher has flexibility with due dates on assignments it was good.
42	anonymous	English (United States)	Frankly, it doesn't benefit my child. I'm not sure why we are still doing it.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
43	anonymous	English (United States)	My Child needs to learn how to do it online. Good learning tool.
44	anonymous	English (United States)	It does not,
45	anonymous	English (United States)	My children do their work and catch-up on any assignments they are behind on. We appreciate the flexibility it gives our family. Also it gives the older girls a chance to practice their teaching skills and what they know of a you g sibling is struggling with algebra or chemistry.
46	anonymous	English (United States)	It gives us piece of mind that our child is not reviving potentially too much exposure to COVID from being physically present at school. It allows us to oversee our child's schoolwork and better engage in their education process.
47	anonymous	English (United States)	There is no benefit for our child when it comes to her struggles with online school and not being able to talk to her teachers direct face to face. Some teachers did a wonderful job on trying their hardest for what 2020 handed us. Others I don't feel handled online well at all, due to either tech skills which is not their fault or lack of care which is their fault. If all teachers could have the proper training needed to be excellent in the 21st century ways, which I am all for, then remote online schooling would work and children would not suffer from it.
48	anonymous	English (United States)	Remote day accomplished ONE, and only one, of the purposes stated at the beginning of this survey, the purpose of the children/parents being comfortable with completing work remotely, in the event that Kimberly school district had to do all remote learning as we had to Spring of 2020, due to Covid. We now know how to do the work remotely. Goal accomplished. Therefore, we are ready to go back to a normal 5-day school week IN PERSON. There has not been any other benefit to having remote Friday.
49	anonymous	English (United States)	I've liked seeing what the kids are working on and I think they've enjoyed helping each other with their work.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
50	anonymous	English (United States)	His teacher did an excellent job providing us with the proper work and layout to what we were suppose to be doing and made it very fun for him to interact with his class every Friday at [REDACTED] online. He enjoyed all of her fun videos and being online.
51	anonymous	English (United States)	Flexibility
52	anonymous	English (United States)	The only benefit is that I can make sure he does his work.
53	anonymous	English (United States)	My child enjoyed having a "catch-up" day. I feel instruction time was lost that we can't recover but my child did not suffer because of it. I know other families and students have struggled with not being in the classrooms.
54	anonymous	English (United States)	The online Fridays have helped to continue to prepare my daughter for online classes in the event of a longer shut down period,. Her teacher have done a great job helping to support her during these days.
55	anonymous	English (United States)	Allows us more to view what kids are learning online. Getting work done so we can have more time as a family
56	anonymous	English (United States)	Great day for her to spend at home working on assignments and catching up or getting ahead on anything she may need to work on.
57	anonymous	English (United States)	Being able to figure things out on their own
58	anonymous	English (United States)	Kids stay home, keeps my son off the road when the weather is bad.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
59	anonymous	English (United States)	N/a
60	anonymous	English (United States)	Technology has been a struggle for us. In the beginning, I didn't like it so much. But as we've learned new skills. Updated our Internet. And as the school has updated to just one Platform instead of several I have learned to love it. I especially appreciate That there is a little bit more freedom on this day. To get things done That my child might be a little bit behind in. I like that they can still reach out to the teachers. And that we have a day during the week that I could schedule a doctor's appointment without it Cutting right into the middle of School.
61	anonymous	English (United States)	It give us more family time. It reduces the stress of one more full school day per week.
62	anonymous	English (United States)	The only benefit the remote day has possibly had is that is may have kept the students in face to face instruction the majority of the other 4 days per week.
63	anonymous	English (United States)	We have more flexibility on that day.
64	anonymous	English (United States)	It was horrible for my high school student
65	anonymous	English (United States)	Flexibility with the day
66	anonymous	English (United States)	More time together as a family.
67	anonymous	English (United States)	Travel and ski days

ID	Name	Language	Responses
68	anonymous	English (United States)	No benefit
69	anonymous	English (United States)	I feel like the remote day allows for my teens to be more focused on the classwork that they need to finish up the week. They don't have the distractions that are brought on by being among other students and their friends, allowing for this focus to occur. I really think that having this remote day in the middle of the week on Wednesday would be more appropriate for the current pandemic at hand, allowing for deep cleaning of the facilities to occur and time away from the masses twice each week along with the weekend break.
70	anonymous	English (United States)	I feel like it is a disservice to the kids and the teachers.
71	anonymous	English (United States)	It helps my student get and stay caught up on his s hook work
72	anonymous	English (United States)	Less anxiety
73	anonymous	English (United States)	My kids like fridays online
74	anonymous	English (United States)	It doesn't
75	anonymous	English (United States)	We can sleep in. Day to schedule appt and such.
76	anonymous	English (United States)	It was nice to have an extra day to quarantine without missing too much school and to watch for COVID symptoms when we had been exposed.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
77	anonymous	English (United States)	Negatives outweigh benefits. Our family has been unable to find much benefit to remote day.
78	anonymous	English (United States)	The remote learning Friday's has been great for our high school student. It allows him to get up at his normal time on Friday's and work on his school work. Most weeks he is pretty efficient and get complete his work and have half a day to work at his job which is nice for him. Remote Friday's are also helping him learn independence as far as being a self starter. He's learning to be more responsible for his school work and do it because he knows he's supposed to do it. He's learning to be more responsible. It also allows us an extra few hours in our weekends if we are needing to go out of town or do something. Just a few of the reasons we love remote learning Friday's.
79	anonymous	English (United States)	I can see what my child is doing and help them when needed. It gives us a chance to go over all his classes and make sure he is on track.
80	anonymous	English (United States)	Yes. My son is learning to prioritize his time and work independently. Online school is part of primary and secondary education now so it's great for youth to get comfortable with it now. It also prepares youth for the demands of a career where they will need to prioritize time and meet deadlines independently.
81	anonymous	English (United States)	It doesn't. That being said Monday's would be far more beneficial. Most high school sports fall on Friday so the kids and teachers all go to school anyway. And most holidays fall on Monday's so all told less missed in person learning and bigger budget savings by using Monday's.
82	anonymous	English (United States)	We have really enjoyed being more engaged in our child's education. This has been an avenue for us to completely engage with them in the education.
83	anonymous	English (United States)	It wasn't beneficial

ID	Name	Language	Responses
84	anonymous	English (United States)	We LOVE IT!! Provides so much great flexibility that works well with our family.
85	anonymous	English (United States)	Helps contain the spread of COVID, especially in our family in which all members are in positions where they are dealing with many people outside the family unit (son in school, daughter in school and working [REDACTED], mom in [REDACTED])
86	anonymous	English (United States)	Decreased exposure during the pandemic.
87	anonymous	English (United States)	The kids enjoy being home. It also allows my son to work another day at his job which he loves
88	anonymous	English (United States)	The kids like being home
89	anonymous	English (United States)	It doesn't.
90	anonymous	English (United States)	None
91	anonymous	English (United States)	Freedom for doctor's appointments, travel, exposure to what college will look like.
92	anonymous	English (United States)	It has been a great experience for our family! Our children have learned to care for each other and help each other out through this experience. It has brought them closer together and has also helped them to manage their own time and organizational skills in a way that they would not have had to previous to remote day learning. It has been a great experience for our family!

ID	Name	Language	Responses
93	anonymous	English (United States)	It gives me and my daughter a day together once a week. It also gives her the ability to complete her work in under an hour and have the rest of the day to do whatever she'd like. I also anticipate she will be taking college classes online in her future so I feel this helps prepare her for that.
94	anonymous	English (United States)	It doesn't
95	anonymous	English (United States)	It's allowed more flexibility and has given him a chance to be more self motivated. It has also helped him stay caught up on homework.
96	anonymous	English (United States)	██████ is able to work without common day distractions
97	anonymous	English (United States)	It works very well
98	anonymous	English (United States)	It works out just fine.
99	anonymous	English (United States)	The remote learning day allows our daughter to complete the work at her own pace and also allows time for her to catch up on any work that was given in person during the week. She is able to complete all of this in a much more efficient manner than she is able to do going to school in person on Fridays. We enjoy the flexibility of being able to schedule other things on Fridays and not have to worry about absorbing an absence and then trying to round up the work that was missed.
100	anonymous	English (United States)	Remote day makes sense during a pandemic.
101	anonymous	English (United States)	The remote day allows for flexibility with schedules, as well as, allows us as parents to be actively involved in our children's education and school work.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
102	anonymous	English (United States)	The remote day worked fine for our family since our students are at the high school level. It gave them some flexibility that they liked and could manage.
103	anonymous	English (United States)	The flexibility of accessing school work from another location.
104	anonymous	English (United States)	Kids can still do their virtual work, but also come in and make up work and or get extra help if needed from teachers. Doctors appointments can be made on Fridays as not to miss in class instruction.
105	anonymous	English (United States)	It allows my high schooler who works [REDACTED] to get more hours in at work thereby learning marketable skills that will benefit him far into the future.
106	anonymous	English (United States)	A three day weekend
107	anonymous	English (United States)	It's a three day weekend
108	anonymous	English (United States)	My child get more done
109	anonymous	English (United States)	I don't think it benefited or hurt my child.
110	anonymous	English (United States)	I think it is preparing high schoolers better for college. My college kids have so so so much online even before covid and fully online classes.
111	anonymous	English (United States)	We get to spend more time together

ID	Name	Language	Responses
112	anonymous	English (United States)	It doesn't. It is basically just a free day for her.
113	anonymous	English (United States)	For my High School student it gives her the opportunity to manage her own time. So for her she gets more manageable time to work on her IDLA classes.
114	anonymous	English (United States)	It gives my daughter time to catch up on assignments with a parent helping.
115	anonymous	English (United States)	A day without contact
116	anonymous	English (United States)	It gave our family more time to be together.
117	anonymous	English (United States)	I'm. It sure it benefits us much, it's fine but I feel like my kids rush through school work to play online games. They seem to do the minimal required work that day.
118	anonymous	English (United States)	She works @ her own pace & is not rushed 2 finish school work.
119	anonymous	English (United States)	Independence
120	anonymous	English (United States)	Gives her an extra day to catch up on school work or get extra hoirs at work.
121	anonymous	English (United States)	My son can go to work on fridays

ID	Name	Language	Responses
122	anonymous	English (United States)	It has kept the kids in school, which is appreciated and prepared them to learn remotely if necessary.
123	anonymous	English (United States)	It didn't
124	anonymous	English (United States)	Tends to be a day off, for a 3 day weekend... with the older students taking this attitude, tough to enforce the younger siblings to establish a good learning habits and bed times.
125	anonymous	English (United States)	Tends to be a day off, for a 3 day weekend... with the older students taking this attitude, tough to enforce the younger siblings to establish a good learning habits and bed times.
126	anonymous	English (United States)	Flexibility and less exposure to the pandemic
127	anonymous	English (United States)	No benefit to our household
128	anonymous	English (United States)	The kids like it. Better morale
129	anonymous	English (United States)	Having my daughter around to help with younger kids
130	anonymous	English (United States)	NA
131	anonymous	English (United States)	None

ID	Name	Language	Responses
132	anonymous	English (United States)	My Daughter can work at her own pace and have the ability to ask questions to their teacher without being intimidating.
133	anonymous	English (United States)	My Daughter can work at her own pace and have the ability to ask questions to their teacher without being intimidating.
134	anonymous	English (United States)	Less exposure to the virus
135	anonymous	English (United States)	It didn't, Thursday started the weekend for kids.
136	anonymous	English (United States)	Gives us a catch-up day and a day to unwind and work at home as a family
137	anonymous	English (United States)	Gives us a catch-up day and a day to unwind, stay home and work together as a family
138	anonymous	English (United States)	It gives time for everything to be completed and go at a different pace
139	anonymous	English (United States)	It allows extra time to get things complete and go at a different pace
140	anonymous	English (United States)	flexible schedule; don't have to wake up early
141	anonymous	English (United States)	Long weekend

ID	Name	Language	Responses
142	anonymous	English (United States)	I like the additional time with my child home. It allows for more family time and allows some mental health focus too
143	anonymous	English (United States)	It's nice to have that down day. Yes there is plenty of homework it is not a rushed day to all be out the door by 7:45 am. It's nice.
144	anonymous	English (United States)	Time to catch up.
145	anonymous	English (United States)	Time to catch up
146	anonymous	English (United States)	having him home on Fridays allows him time to learn other life skills
147	anonymous	English (United States)	I don't feel it was beneficial.
148	anonymous	English (United States)	It is easier to have only 4 day school; however, the learning on the remote day is compromised in my opinion.
149	anonymous	English (United States)	It gives my student an opportunity to work in a quiet environment allowing her focus and catch up on work or work ahead, keeping her on task and not feeling so overwhelmed.
150	anonymous	English (United States)	We like having a down day.. little less stress and the consistent a/b schedule.

3. What challenges and hardships does the remote day create for your family?

149Responses

ID	Name	Language	Responses
1	anonymous	English (United States)	I have 4 teenagers at home doing whatever they want, which never includes school work. It has been a huge battle all year long
2	anonymous	English (United States)	No challenge or hardship
3	anonymous	English (United States)	My internet is woefully inadequate so while it is not the districts problem it still lead to difficulty at times
4	anonymous	English (United States)	All my kids think it's a day off, and as we are not home to enforce, keep them on track, and help out, that is what it ends up being
5	anonymous	English (United States)	He has to watch little brother and be a tutor
6	anonymous	English (United States)	The kids think it's a day off, my husband and I still have to go to work, and are not home to help
7	anonymous	English (United States)	None
8	anonymous	English (United States)	I have to leave my child at home alone.
9	anonymous	English (United States)	Laughing at the table as we discuss assignments that is our challenge. No hardships.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
10	anonymous	English (United States)	None
11	anonymous	English (United States)	Slower internet. Had to buy laptops for my 3 kids.
12	anonymous	English (United States)	My wife and I have to work, leaving our kids at home to do their work unattended. By the end of the semester some teachers have stopped posting assignments to complete, because teachers know that this isn't working. Some teachers are not available for part of the day and so when we have a question, they don't reply that day, even though the email is sent late that morning. If this is to continue teachers should be at the school, so that an option to ask the teacher, in person, is a possibility. Students could retake tests that day too. If a teacher is unavailable they should be held accountable and should be taking a vacation day.
13	anonymous	English (United States)	None, my student is mostly self-sufficient
14	anonymous	English (United States)	Some sibling arguments when mom and dad are both at work lol, never know who's in charge
15	anonymous	English (United States)	None.
16	anonymous	English (United States)	None
17	anonymous	English (United States)	None

ID	Name	Language	Responses
18	anonymous	English (United States)	The only challenge is my special education student, trying to check in and make sure he is getting it done.
19	anonymous	English (United States)	None
20	anonymous	English (United States)	None
21	anonymous	English (United States)	None
22	anonymous	English (United States)	We have adapted and made it work.
23	anonymous	English (United States)	It does not create any challenges for us.
24	anonymous	English (United States)	None
25	anonymous	English (United States)	The challenges are motivating your children to do the online while there is two working parents. A lot of the time it doesn't get looked at until Sunday evening.
26	anonymous	English (United States)	With any remote school, its hard to get motivated, but you just have to have a schedule
27	anonymous	English (United States)	Inconsistent amount of school work day in and day out.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
28	anonymous	English (United States)	None
29	anonymous	English (United States)	None really we really enjoy it.
30	anonymous	English (United States)	None
31	anonymous	English (United States)	I know it has been hard for some families but it has been a good thing for us. We have 9 kids in all so it can be a struggle for everyone to get the time at the computer they need. After some trial and error I think we have that down now.
32	anonymous	English (United States)	None
33	anonymous	English (United States)	None
34	anonymous	English (United States)	Grades, lack of interest
35	anonymous	English (United States)	It gives the illusion of a 3 day weekend and drops the motivation to actually do school work. My son does his best with a steady routine and the remote day doesn't have any real structure. It would be better if it was set up like online classes where you had to log on at the right time and interact. His father and I work all day on Fridays with no way to get those days off and its been very hard to keep our son on track.
36	anonymous	English (United States)	None

ID	Name	Language	Responses
37	anonymous	English (United States)	If he needed help, it was difficult with my work schedule.
38	anonymous	English (United States)	I have a high school child who is fine to be alone, however, we have multiple employees at our office with younger children who have found this to be very taxing as they have had to scramble to rearrange things while they are at work.
39	anonymous	English (United States)	My Child doesn't get online and therefor it is a constant battle.
40	anonymous	English (United States)	The constant distractions of home when parents are not there to keep kids on track makes it very difficult to get the work done and welding and other hands on classes cannot be completed online
41	anonymous	English (United States)	Sometimes it is hard to focus on school since we would rather be having fun.
42	anonymous	English (United States)	None
43	anonymous	English (United States)	This did not create any hardships for us as a family, we are always here to help and support our children no matter what. This put a hardship and challenge on our daughter for what it is and not understanding different online ways or what some teachers where trying to tell her. She is the type of student that asks lots of questions to understand things and needs the interaction with her teachers in order for her to achieve good grades.
44	anonymous	English (United States)	Stress. Unproductive.
45	anonymous	English (United States)	We haven't had any challenges or hardships with remote learning.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
46	anonymous	English (United States)	Since we are business owners, this put a little bit more of a challenge on our everyday work life to become our sons teacher. Elementary is different then highschool due to the fact that he needs more help then our highschool daughter.
47	anonymous	English (United States)	Internet glitches with 4 students and 1 adult working remotely is our biggest challenge. With my 2 high school students, one enjoys remote day, the other really struggles with remote day, mostly time management and getting everything done. He usually started the next week a bit behind because he didn't complete all his remote assignments.
48	anonymous	English (United States)	It is hard to get him to do assignments when they seem to just be given just because there is supposed to be an assignment on remote day. It is hard for him to be motivated to do it on a day at home, and Canvas has not been the most reliable. He gets frustrated with that and the teachers (a few) are not very sympathetic to technology trouble.
49	anonymous	English (United States)	None
50	anonymous	English (United States)	It doesn't!
51	anonymous	English (United States)	Maybe if they need help one on one
52	anonymous	English (United States)	NONE
53	anonymous	English (United States)	Slow internet, missed check in times, parent not always home. Grades are lower
54	anonymous	English (United States)	Not being able to help with homework. Other then that no hardships.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
55	anonymous	English (United States)	None
56	anonymous	English (United States)	Not having Reliable Internet And or very slow Internet. Has been a very huge challenge for us. And one that the teachers have not been very understanding about. I was pretty hurt about that in the beginning When the. First shutdown happened. We live in an area Where there is no access to cable and have had to make do with slow internet. This will be an ongoing challenge for us. But we are figuring it out.
57	anonymous	English (United States)	Sometimes our WiFi does not work or is very slow. It is impossible for us to provide 1 laptop per kid.
58	anonymous	English (United States)	Is is distruptive to our schedule and my student does not receive the expected 4 hours (or generally more than 1.5 hours) of instruction on remote Friday. It is generally a "free day"
59	anonymous	English (United States)	It hasn't really created any hardships for our family.
60	anonymous	English (United States)	My son does not handle remote work well. It made him okay with not getting assignments done. He simply got to where he didn't care about his grades
61	anonymous	English (United States)	None
62	anonymous	English (United States)	Interferes with at home responsibilities. Limited communication with teachers and less instruction.
63	anonymous	English (United States)	None

ID	Name	Language	Responses
64	anonymous	English (United States)	Chaos! Not enough internet bandwidth for multiple persons on the internet for us in the country. Changed provider twice without better results. Keeping my teenagers motivated to get school work done was like having ANOTHER full time job. It was a disruption in the household schedule. Lack of communication from educators.
65	anonymous	English (United States)	None
66	anonymous	English (United States)	None of the above.
67	anonymous	English (United States)	This is not a problem for our family but it is a failure to their education.
68	anonymous	English (United States)	N/A
69	anonymous	English (United States)	None
70	anonymous	English (United States)	None
71	anonymous	English (United States)	Too often there isn't enough instruction. Our son went from straight A's to B's and C's.
72	anonymous	English (United States)	Stressful when homework consists of something needing teacher instruction and my Child gets stressed out.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
73	anonymous	English (United States)	It was really hard for my kids to get motivated to complete their remote work on Fridays. They would drag it out the whole day and into the weekend.
74	anonymous	English (United States)	Remote day is a ridiculous amount of computer time for my son that already takes IDLA and spends many diligent hours completing work online for one single class. Adding remote day work online for his in-person classes has increased his screen time tremendously. We can handle the new-age technology and variety of educational tools and programs but this is excessive. He also feels obligated to help his younger siblings each Friday as mom and dad work. He dreads Fridays.
75	anonymous	English (United States)	None
76	anonymous	English (United States)	Sometimes you can't get a quick answer from the teacher but this doesn't happen very often.
77	anonymous	English (United States)	Just the need for a laptop that we had to purchase.
78	anonymous	English (United States)	None
79	anonymous	English (United States)	No hardships or challenges. We love it and hope that the Kimberly school district will strongly consider continuing this program.
80	anonymous	English (United States)	Our high schooler did ok with it, our younger kids struggled. It was hard cause us parents who work couldn't help them, our high schooler helped them, then he didn't get his done. I would have rather had the kids go 20-30 minutes longer Monday-Thursday, and just have Friday completely off.
81	anonymous	English (United States)	It can be hard to keep all the kids focused and everything accomplished with school work. Would be so nice if we had a four day school week and Fridays completely off.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
82	anonymous	English (United States)	The challenges do not outweigh the benefits.
83	anonymous	English (United States)	We had to increase our Wi-Fi access and purchase upgraded computers.
84	anonymous	English (United States)	If a student has working parents, it is difficult to find a way to ensure success and encourage the student to do their best on these days. Some Fridays are less intense, but most Fridays are filled with more work than the student would do in a typical school day (and without the instruction).
85	anonymous	English (United States)	None
86	anonymous	English (United States)	None
87	anonymous	English (United States)	Learning online is hard for my child, she needs a teacher to fully understand.
88	anonymous	English (United States)	Learning online is difficult and a teacher is needed.
89	anonymous	English (United States)	My own child not wanting to log on. Since there is not space to say this below, I would like to see more work given in the week while at school and Friday is for the students to finish out work. Not from my own experience, but I have talked to a lot of parents who have said that they would prefer virtual Friday to be to "catch up". I also think Fridays could be used as intervention for struggling students. Teachers would be present at school and could invite students in to get help, finish tests, etc.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
90	anonymous	English (United States)	None...It has been a great experience for our family!
91	anonymous	English (United States)	Most but not all content is as easily received through digital channels.
92	anonymous	English (United States)	Child not getting work done.
93	anonymous	English (United States)	Trying to make our internet work while 4 kids are online has been tricky, but we have made it work.
94	anonymous	English (United States)	None
95	anonymous	English (United States)	None
96	anonymous	English (United States)	None
97	anonymous	English (United States)	Although the online curriculum at the high school level is more rigorous than the middle school, I feel that the academic instruction and requirements of remote Fridays is definitely lacking. If remote Fridays were to continue, I would like the expectations of the teachers to be higher for the students than what I've seen this year. Other than that, remote Fridays do not create any hardships for our family.
98	anonymous	English (United States)	Fridays are difficult to have a remote learning day. Very challenging to motivate students to actually learn on Fridays at home. It has become a 3 day weekend unfortunately. Mondays or Wednesday may be more effective. Also if assignments were due at 3:00 pm on Friday rather than at midnight might encourage more serious use of the day.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
99	anonymous	English (United States)	Motivating my high school student while I'm at work has been the biggest challenge. Follow up on his school work usually doesn't happen until Friday night when I get home and teachers are then unavailable for the remainder of the weekend.
100	anonymous	English (United States)	None
101	anonymous	English (United States)	With one kid in 9th grade, she works well on her own. She can be home alone so child care is no issue.
102	anonymous	English (United States)	None
103	anonymous	English (United States)	None
104	anonymous	English (United States)	It's hard to take it as a serious school day
105	anonymous	English (United States)	The deadlines have been hard when they've been extended to Sunday. A Friday at 3:00 would encourage more "school day" learning.
106	anonymous	English (United States)	None
107	anonymous	English (United States)	None
108	anonymous	English (United States)	It works fine for us.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
109	anonymous	English (United States)	We need better internet
110	anonymous	English (United States)	None
111	anonymous	English (United States)	The biggest complaint my high schooler has is she states the teachers dump a lot of extra assignment work on Fridays that they don't do during the week. You would think the teachers would get a heavier load at the beginning of the week so the students have more opportunities to get guidance/help from the teacher.
112	anonymous	English (United States)	The kids see it as an early weekend and consequently they do not do any school work that day.
113	anonymous	English (United States)	None, but my spouse works from home and we have computers and good internet.
114	anonymous	English (United States)	No challenges
115	anonymous	English (United States)	A challenge for my daughter is that one of her classes was a double credit CSI class so every remote Friday she had homework for that class regardless which Friday it was. She felt like teachers assigned as many assignments as they wanted because they could because they weren't at school. She learns better in the classroom.
116	anonymous	English (United States)	I am home anyway so it's not a hardship but I have to constantly hover over them to make sure they are on task and not surfing the web or playing games.
117	anonymous	English (United States)	None

ID	Name	Language	Responses
118	anonymous	English (United States)	Sometimes the technology fails, but also a good thing to learn to cope with.
119	anonymous	English (United States)	My student does not learn well remotely.
120	anonymous	English (United States)	No hardships, if the intent was to get students familiar with process that seems to be achieved, it's nice that they know how it works, however there is no learning going on on fridays that I can see or very little anyway my son has a job and spends his fridays working. He is very independent however and may be doing more than I realize
121	anonymous	English (United States)	As my son does not have to be in class at a certain time, he sleeps in most of the day and then begins his remote Friday work late in the day. This causes additional challenges as he is trying to cram all of this work into a limited amount of time. Having a set class schedule allows him to manage his time better and be a better student. He ends up staying up until midnight to finish assignments which would have been completed in class. He often has questions about his assignments and does not reach out to his teachers as he would in a regular class room setting. He tends to give up on assignments rather than emailing a teacher and asking for clarification. Being in front of a screen for hours also makes him feel much more edgy and frustrated overall. I feel as if I have to try to manage his time and assignments much more than would be typical if he were in class. As I already have four other children doing Remote Friday work, this is not a great option.
122	anonymous	English (United States)	My son is on a IEP. So he had a hard time in the beginning. But starting to get it know.
123	anonymous	English (United States)	Makes it difficult to have consistency.
124	anonymous	English (United States)	Tends to be a day off, for a 3 day weekend... with the older students taking this attitude, tough to enforce the younger siblings to establish a good learning habits and bed times.

ID	Name	Language	Responses
125	anonymous	English (United States)	None
126	anonymous	English (United States)	I have seen occasional missed assignments that had not been posted along with other assignments and assignments that my son thought had been submitted properly then to find it wasn't resulting in a late grade. Overall not a bad experience, but some slightly lower overall grades as a result
127	anonymous	English (United States)	None
128	anonymous	English (United States)	Very poor internet out here
129	anonymous	English (United States)	No adult home for half of the day. It can be difficult to make sure they are doing their assignments.
130	anonymous	English (United States)	None
131	anonymous	English (United States)	None
132	anonymous	English (United States)	None
133	anonymous	English (United States)	Little motivation to do online school, especially on Friday

ID	Name	Language	Responses
134	anonymous	English (United States)	Really getting work done at home. Teacher assigning busy work that older student feels is not beneficial and not motivated to do. Every other Friday when I work kids don't get it done as expected so then cuts into family time over the actual weekend.
135	anonymous	English (United States)	none
136	anonymous	English (United States)	none
137	anonymous	English (United States)	None
138	anonymous	English (United States)	None
139	anonymous	English (United States)	As mentioned in my comments for Stricker and KMS, besides technology issues and lack of real time interactivity, I just don't believe online classes are as good as in person instruction.
140	anonymous	English (United States)	Student unclear on expectations and assignments
141	anonymous	English (United States)	None However lining up with Twins remote day would benefit us greatly, we have a son at TFHS
142	anonymous	English (United States)	None, really. It can get a little crazy in a large family helping so many kids at once but it really is ok.
143	anonymous	English (United States)	Some days a large amount of assignments

ID	Name	Language	Responses
144	anonymous	English (United States)	Some days, large amounts of assignments due.
145	anonymous	English (United States)	no hardships
146	anonymous	English (United States)	I feel that it caused disruption to the routine.
147	anonymous	English (United States)	none
148	anonymous	English (United States)	There is sometimes confusion about assignments or expectations. When she's realized she has questions it's usually after hours of being able to communicate with the teacher (which is her fault not the teachers). She's always been able to resolve her issues by waiting to speak to the teacher at school or through email.
149	anonymous	English (United States)	I dont think the learning was optimized.. but not sure it is drastically different IN the classroom.